

A bridge between school, family, and community

Role of Settlement Workers in Schools (SWIS)

At the heart of family services

- Helping families better understand the school system and their settlement journey
- Connecting families to school, community, and government resources
- Supporting adaptation to the Canadian context and easing the settlement journey
- Encouraging parents to get involved in school and extracurricular activities

In service of students

- Supporting their integration and participation in school and extracurricular activities
- Providing information on school programs, extracurricular activities, summer jobs, and post-secondary education
- Supporting access to community and social networks
- Facilitating their settlement journey

In collaboration with schools

- Collaborating with school staff and community partners
- Raising awareness about the realities of newcomer students
- Promoting inclusion and living together
- Encouraging a school environment that supports success

With a SWIS worker, it's:

- ✓ Personalized support
- ✓ Better integration
- ✓ Sustained academic success
